October, 2010

It is with great pride that I commend Nathaniel Buechler on the Scorpion Success booklet he allowed us to use at the Oakland Mills High School New Student Orientation this past August. The quality of work and the passionate devotion to creating, editing, securing donors and publishing the booklet are exemplary.

I have been most impressed by Nathaniel's ability to follow this from a concept created in his Intern Mentor class as an OMHS student to the product that impressed students, faculty and parents. This is one alumnus whose pride and enthusiasm is most evident.

As I cleaned up the auditorium and collected evaluations at the close of the Orientation, people were looking everywhere for additional copies of Scorpion Success. There were only two copies I found and both had coffee stains and ripped pages. The other booklets made their way to the homes of students wishing to learn about what OMHS has to offer.

Thanks to the hard work and dedication of Nathaniel Buechler our new students have a well produced publication (in color!) that gives great insight into all that we at Oakland Mills know and love.

Sincerely,
